The Morningstar Target Allocation Indexes are a market-based tool designed for creating and benchmarking multi-asset investment portfolios according to region-specific asset class preferences and risk tolerances. By leveraging Morningstar's database of multi-asset funds to determine weights across key asset classes, the indexes provide investors with a market-based, regionally relevant asset allocation framework that is aligned with the Morningstar Categories for Allocation Funds.

Nine region-specific sets of Target Allocation Indexes are available, including Australia, Canada, Europe, Japan, Korea, New Zealand, United Kingdom, and United States as well as a multi-region set for Europe, Asia, and South Africa domiciled USD funds. Key features of the Target Allocation Indexes include:

- Seamless asset class representation Each regional set of Morningstar Target Allocation Indexes is comprised of underlying Morningstar Indexes that closely represent the most commonly used asset allocation building blocks for multi-asset portfolios according to the region's Category data.
- Regionally relevant risk-based asset allocation Morningstar's database of multi-asset funds is used to determine the asset class allocations and weights for each regional set of Target Allocation Indexes, thereby reflecting local asset class preferences and risk tolerances.
- Globally consistent, rules-based methodology The Morningstar Target Allocation Indexes offer a premier market-based tool for multi-asset benchmarking and portfolio construction, built on an entirely rules-based and globally consistent methodology that reflects the asset allocation wisdom of the market.
- Alignment with Morningstar Category classifications The Morningstar Category classification system is a widely used tool by investors to identify funds and evaluate fund performance relative to other funds in the category.

Starting universe

All open-end funds within the Morningstar Categories for UK Allocation Funds are included in the initial universe from which average asset allocation will be calculated for each risk-based index. Data for these categories is based on portfolio holdings data.

Average asset allocation

Asset allocation is determined according to the following process:

- A simple average asset allocation is calculated across all funds within each Allocation Fund Category (only one share class of a fund is considered).
- Removal of outliers: funds with average allocation below the 5th and above the 95th percentile of the respective Morningstar Category are excluded.
- The remaining funds are used to determine the asset allocation mix of equity, bond, and cash which serve as the primary asset classes. Weight from other asset classes is rescaled proportionally to the primary asset classes.
- Total equity allocation is recentered to the midpoint of equity range for each Allocation Category and asset class level allocations are rescaled to maintain appropriate weights.

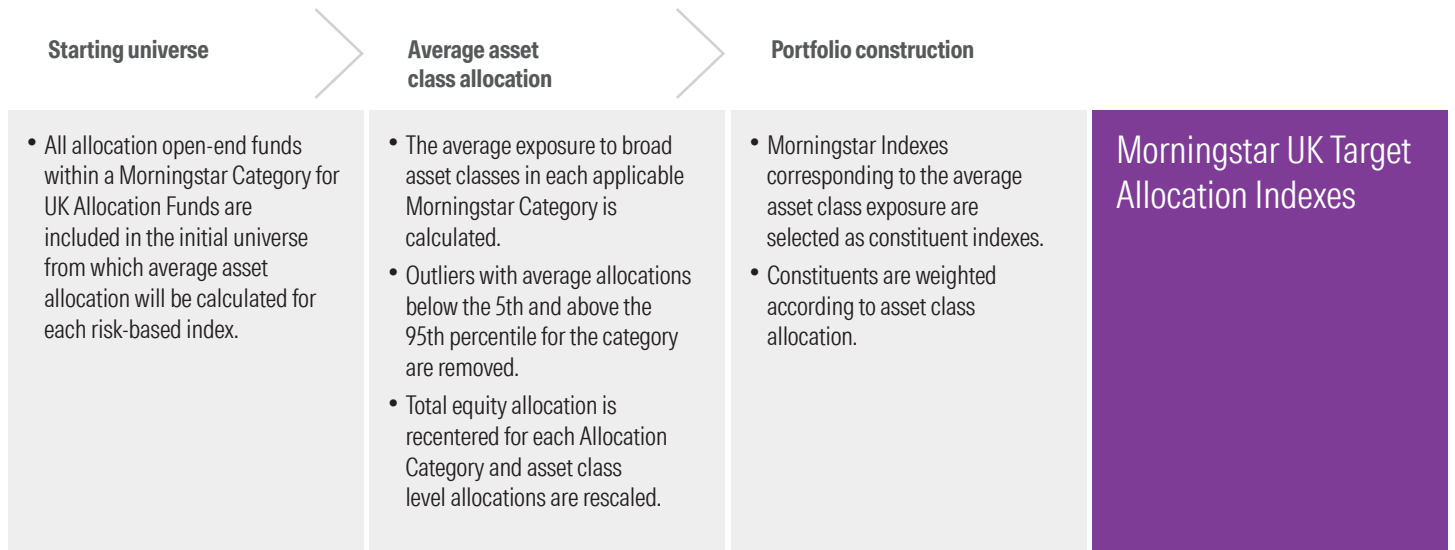

Portfolio construction

Morningstar Indexes are selected as constituents to correspond with the average asset class allocations. International fixed income is fully hedged.

Index weighting and maintenance

The index weights are reconstituted annually in June, according to the average asset class calculation. Index rebalancing occurs monthly to maintain the target weights designated at the annual reconstitution.
